Part C: Short Answer

Answer each question in one or two complete sentences.

1. What is an interjection? Give two examples used in everyday speech.

An interjection is a word that expresses strong emotion or surprise, such as "Yay!" or "Oops!" They often appear at the start of a sentence.

2. Explain the difference between a preposition and a conjunction with an example of each.

A preposition shows location or direction, like "under the table." A conjunction joins words or ideas, like "bread and butter."
